Report of Lieut General U. S. Grant, of the Armies of the United States—1864-'65

HEADQUARTERS ARMIES OF THE UNITED STATES, WASHINGTON, D. C., July 22, 1865.—To the Secretary of War:

I have the honor to submit the following report of the operations of the armies of the United States from the date of my appointment to command the same.

From an early period in the rebellion I had been impressed with the idea that active and continuous operations all the time that could be brought into the field, regardless of season and weather, were necessary to a speedy termination of the war. The resources of the enemy and his numerical strength, were far inferior to ours; but as an offset to this we had a vast territory with a population hostile to the government, to garrison and long lines of river and railroad communications to protect, to enable us to supply the operating armies.

The armies in the east and west acted independently and with but concert, like a ball batted from one side to the other, each striking when opportunity presented, and following up its success or repulse without any regard to what was transpiring elsewhere, except when the enemy forced reinforcements from one army to another. The only question with the commanding general was, where he could safely transfer troops from one army to another, and the relative advantage to be gained by such transfers. Information received from all sources, during the winter, satisfied me that the enemy's forces in Tennessee could not be seriously weakened by detachments to the support of Lee in Virginia, without inviting an attack which would result in the capture of Richmond. I therefore determined to hammer continuously against the armed force of the enemy, preventing him from using the same force at different seasons against first one and then another of our armies and possibly of repose for refitting and producing necessary supplies for carrying on resistance. Second, to hammer continuously against the armed force of the enemy and his resources, until by mere attrition if in no other way, there should be nothing left to him but an equal submission with the loyal section of our common country to the Constitution and laws of the land.

These views have been kept constantly in mind, and orders given and campaigns made to carry them out. Whether they might have been better in conception and execution is for the people, who mourn the loss of friends fallen, and who have to pay the pecuniary cost, to say. All I can say is, that what I have done has been done conscientiously to the best of my ability, and in what I conceived to be for the best interests of the whole country.

At the date when this report begins the situation of the contending forces was about as follows: The Mississippi River was strongly garrisoned by Federal troops from St. Louis, Missouri, to its mouth. The line of the Arkansas was also held, thus giving us armed possession of all west of the Mississippi, north of that stream. A few points in southern Louisiana, not remote from the river, were held by us, together with a small garrison at and near the mouth of the Rio Grande. All the balance of the vast territory of Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas was in the almost undisputed possession of the enemy, with an army of probably not less than 80,000 effective men, that could have been brought into the field had there been sufficient opposition to have brought them out. The last alone policy had demoralized this force so that probably but little more than one-half of it was ever present in garrison at any one time. But the one-half of 80,000 men, with the hands of guerillas scattered through Missouri, Arkansas, and along the Mississippi River, and the disloyal character of much of the population, compelled the use of a large number of troops to keep navigation open on the river, and to protect the loyal people to the west of it. To the east of the Mississippi we held substantially with the line of the Tennessee and Holston Rivers, running east to include nearly all of the State of Tennessee. South of Chattanooga a small force had been obtained in Georgia, sufficient to protect East Tennessee from incursions from the enemy's forces at Dalton, Georgia. West Virginia was substantially within our lines. Virginia, with the exception of the northern border, the Potomac river, a small area about the mouth of the James river covered by the troops at Norfolk and Fort Monroe, and the territory covered by the Army of the Potomac lying along the Rapidan, was in the possession of the enemy. Along the sea coast footholds had been obtained at Plymouth, Washington, and Newbern, in North Carolina; Beaufort, Folly and Morris Islands, Hilton Head, Port Pulaski, and Port Royal, in South Carolina; Fernandina and St. Augustine in Florida. Key West and Pensacola were also in our possession, while all the important ports were blockaded by the navy. The accompanying map, a copy of which was sent to General Sherman and other commanders in March, 1864, shows by red lines the territory occupied by us at the beginning of the rebellion and at the opening of the campaign of 1864, while those in blue are the lines which it was proposed to occupy.

Behind the Union lines there were many bands of guerillas and a large population disloyal to the Government, making it necessary to guard every foot of road or river used in supplying our armies. In the South a reign of military despotism prevailed, which made every man and boy capable of bearing arms a soldier, and those who could not bear arms in the field, acted as provosts for collecting deserters and returning them. This enabled the enemy to bring almost his entire strength into the field.

The enemy had concentrated the bulk of his forces east of the Mississippi into two armies commanded by Generals Robert E. Lee and J. E. Johnston, his ablest and best Generals. The army commanded by Lee occupied the south bank of the Rapidan, extending from Mine Run westward strongly intrenched, covering and defending Richmond, the rebel capital, against the army of the Potomac. The army under Johnston occupied a strongly entrenched position at Dalton, Georgia, covering and defending Atlanta, Georgia, a place of great importance as a railroad centre against the armies under Major General W. T. Sherman. In addition to these armies, he had a large cavalry force under Forrest, in north east Mississippi, a considerable force, of all arms in the Shenandoah valley and in the Western part of Virginia, and extensive eastern part of Tennessee, and also confronting our sea coast garrisons, and holding blockaded ports where we had no foothold upon land.

These two armies, and the cities covered and defended by them, were the main objective points of the campaign.

Major General W. T. Sherman, who was appointed to the command of the military division of the Mississippi embracing all the armies and territory east of the Mississippi river to the Alleghanies, and the Department of Arkansas, west of the Mississippi, but the immediate command of the armies operating against Johnston.

Major General George G. Meade had the immediate command of the army of the Potomac from which I withdrew on the 4th of May, 1864, to accompany the movements of all our armies.

General Sherman was instructed to move against Johnston's army to break it up and to get into the interior of the enemy's country so far as he could, inflicting all the damage he could upon their war resources. If the enemy, in his front showed signs of joining Lee to fall upon me with the full extent of his ability, while I would prevent the concentration of Lee upon him if it was in the power of the Army of the Potomac to do so. More specific written instructions were not given, for the reason that I had talked over with him the plans of the campaign, and was satisfied that he understood them and would execute them to the fullest extent possible.

Major General N. P. Banks, then on an expedition up Red river against Shreveport, Louisiana, (which had been organized previous to my appointment to command,) was notified by me on the 15th of March of the importance it was that Shreveport should be taken at the earliest possible day, and that if he found that the taking of it would occupy from ten to fifteen days more time than General Sherman had given his troops to be absent from their command, he would send them back at the time specified by General Sherman even if it led to the abandonment of the main object of the Red river expedition, for the reason that it was necessary to movements east of the Mississippi that should his expedition prove successful he would hold Shreveport and the Red river with such forces as he might deem necessary, and return the balance of his troops to the neighborhood of New Orleans, commencing no move for the further acquisition of territory unless it was to make that then held by him more easily held, that it might be a part of the spring campaign to move against Mobile that it certainly would be if troops enough could be obtained to make it without too much risk.

Information convinced me that New Orleans would be the point of departure for such an expedition also that I had directed General Steele to make a direct move from Arkansas as suggested by him (General Banks) instead of a demonstration as Steele thought advisable.

On the 17th of March, in addition to the foregoing notification and directions, he was instructed as follows:

1st. Have everything in readiness to move against Mobile the first favorable moment after receiving notice that Sherman's army had reached the Chattahoochee, and have ordered him to move against Mobile with the least possible delay. Two thousand men will be sent to you from Vicksburg. General Sherman expects to be on the Chattahoochee by the 10th instant, or as soon thereafter as practicable. Should you not receive notice by that time to move, you will make such disposition of them and your other forces as you may deem best calculated to deceive the enemy as to the real move to be made.

In case you are ordered to move, take City Point with as much force as possible. Fortify, or rather, entrench at once and communicate all your troops for the field there as rapidly as you can. From City Point directions cannot be given at this time for your further movements.

The fact that has already been stated—that is, that Richmond is to be your objective point, and that there is to be co-operation between your force and the army of the Potomac—must be your guide. This indicates the necessity of your holding close to the south bank of the James river as you advance. Then should the enemy be forced into his entrenchments in Richmond the Army of the Potomac would follow, and by means of transports the two armies would become a unit.

All the above details of your advance are left entirely to your discretion. If however, you think it practicable to use my cavalry with yours so as to cut the railroad about Hicks's Ford about the time of the general advance it would be of immense advantage.

You will please forward for my information at the earliest practicable day, all orders, details and instructions you may make for the execution of this order.

U. S. GRANT, Lieutenant General

Major General B. F. Butler

On the 19th, these instructions were substantially reiterated. On the 19th, in order to secure full co-operation between his army and that of General Meade, he was informed that I expected him to move from Port Monroe the same day that General Meade moved from Culpepper. The exact time I was to telegraph him as it was fixed, and it would not be earlier than the 27th of April that it was my intention to fight Lee between Culpepper and Richmond if he would stand. Should he, however, fall back into Richmond, I would follow him up and make a junction with his right. Butler's army on the James River that could be certain he would be able to invest Richmond on the south side, so as to have his left resting on the James, above the city, I would form the junction there that circumstances might make this course advisable anyhow, that he should use every exertion to secure footing as far up the south side of the river as he could, and as soon as possible after the receipt of orders to move, that if he could not carry the city, he should at least detain as large a force as possible.

In co-operation with the main movement against Lee and Johnson, I was desirous of using all other troops necessarily kept in departments remote from the fields of immediate operations, and also those kept in the back ground for the protection of our extended lines between the loyal States and the armies operating against them.

A very considerable force under command of Major General Sigel, was so held for the protection of West Virginia, and the frontiers of Maryland and Pennsylvania. Whilst these troops could not be withdrawn to distant fields without exposing the North to invasion by comparatively small bodies of the enemy, they act directly to their front and give better protection than if lying idle in garrison. By such a movement they would compel the enemy to detach largely for the protection of his supplies and lines of communication. General Sigel was therefore directed to organize all his available force into two expeditions, to move from Beverly and Charleston under command of Generals Ord and Crook against the East Tennessee and Virginia railroad. Subsequently, General Ord having been relieved at his own suggestion, to give up the expedition from Beverly and to form two columns one up the Kanawha Creek, on the Kanawha, numbering about ten thousand men in all, one on the Shenandoah numbering about seven thousand men. The one on the Shenandoah to assemble between Cumberland and the Shenandoah and the infantry and artillery advanced to Cedar creek with as much cavalry as could be made available at the moment of threaten the enemy in the Shenandoah valley and advance as far as possible while General Crook would take possession of Lewisburg with part of his force and move down the Tennessee railroad doing as much damage as he could, destroying the New river bridge and salt works at Saltville, Va.

Owing to the weather and the bad condition of the roads, operations were delayed until the first of May, when everything being in readiness and the roads favorable, orders were given for a general movement of all the armies and not later than the 4th of May.

My first object being to break the military power of the rebellion and capture the enemy's strong holds, made me desirous that General Butler should succeed in his movement against Richmond as that would lead more than anything else, to the capture of Lee's army, I soon found that Meade's army would be unable to move as expected, and that Butler's force would be inadequate to the capture of Richmond, even if it got there without serious opposition. Accordingly, on the 21st of April, I directed Major General Meade to move his army by the left flank to Fredericksburg, and there unite with the forces under General Butler, holding the line of the Richmond and Fredericksburg railroad, and to move from that point. Before starting, however, Lee's army was discovered to be gone from the south bank of the Rapidan, and Meade was ordered to pursue. Pursuit was made to Culpepper Court House, where it was ascertained that Lee had moved towards Gordonsville, and Meade was directed to move by Warrenton, Warrenton Springs, and Sulphur Springs, to Gainesville, and to attack the enemy wherever found. Meade reached Warrenton Springs on the 29th of April, and Gainesville on the 1st of May, when he found that Lee had crossed the Rapidan at Germania and Ely's fords, and was moving towards Spottsylvania Court House. Meade followed, and on the 4th of May, when the movement from Culpepper commenced, was in position with his army on the north bank of the Rapidan, from Germania ford to Wilderness tavern, with his cavalry under General Sheridan, moving in advance, with the main part of its trains, numbering about 4,000 wagons, meeting with but slight opposition. The average distance travelled by the troops that day was about twelve miles. This I regarded as a great success, and it removed from my mind the most serious apprehensions that I had entertained that of crossing the river in the face of an active, large, well-appointed, and ably commanded army, and how so large a train was to be carried through a hostile country and protected. Early on the 5th, the advance corps (the 5th, Major-General G. K. Warren commanding) met and engaged the enemy outside his entrenchments near Mine Run. The battle raged furiously all day, the whole army being brought into the fight as fast as the corps could be got up on the field, which, considering the density of the forest and narrowness of the road was done with commendable promptness.

General Burnside, with the 9th corps, was, at the time the army of the Potomac moved, left with the bulk of his corps at the crossing of the Rappahannock river and Alexandria railroad, holding the roads back to Bull Run, with instructions not to move until he received notice that a crossing of the Rapidan was secured but to move promptly as soon as such notice was received. This crossing he was apprised of on the afternoon of the 4th. By six o'clock of the morning of the 5th he was leading his corps into action near the Wilderness tavern, some of his troops having marched a distance of over thirty miles, crossing both the Rappahannock and Rapidan rivers. Considering that a large proportion, probably two-thirds of his command, was composed of new troops, unaccustomed to marches and carrying the accoutrements of a soldier this was a remarkable march.

The battle of the Wilderness was renewed by us at five o'clock on the morning of the 6th and continued with unabated fury until darkness set in, each army holding substantially the same position that they had on the morning of the 5th. After dark the enemy made a feeble attempt to turn our right flank, capturing several hundred prisoners and creating considerable confusion. But the promptness of General Sedgwick, who was personally present and commanding that part of our line, soon reformed it and restored order. On the morning of the 7th reconnoissances showed that the enemy had fallen behind his intrenched lines, with pickets to the front, covering a part of the battle field. From this it was evident to my mind that the two days' fighting had satisfied him of his inability to further maintain the contest in the open field, notwithstanding his advantages of position, and that he would wait an attack behind his works. I therefore determined to push on and put my whole force between him and Richmond, and orders were at once issued for a movement by his right flank. On the night of the 7th, the march was commenced towards Spottsylvania Court House, the 5th corps moving on the most direct road. But the enemy having become apprised of our movement, and having the shorter line, was enabled to reach there first. On the 8th General Warren met a force of the enemy which had been sent out to amuse and delay his advance, to gain time to fortify the line taken up at Spottsylvania. This force was steadily driven back on the main force, within the recently constructed works, after considerable fighting, resulting in severe loss on both sides. On the morning of the 9th, General Sheridan started on a raid against the enemy's lines of communication with Richmond. The 9th, 10th and 11th were spent in manœuvering and fighting, without decisive results. Among the killed on the 9th, was that able and distinguished soldier, Major General John Sedgwick commanding the 6th army corps. Major General H. G. Wright, succeeded him in command. Early on the morning of the 12th a general attack was made on the enemy in position. The second corps, Major General Hancock commanding carried a salient of his line, capturing most of Johnston's division of Ewell's corps and twenty pieces of artillery. But the resistance was so obstinate that the advantage gained did not prove decisive. The 12th, 14th, 15th, 16th, 17th and 18th, were occupied in manœuvering and awaiting the arrival of reinforcements from Washington. Deeming it impracticable to make any further attack upon the enemy at Spottsylvania Court House, orders were issued on the 18th looking forward to a movement towards the North Ann, to commence at 12 o'clock on the night of the 19th. Late in the afternoon of the 19th Lowell's corps came out of the works on our extreme right flank, but the attack was promptly repulsed, with heavy loss. This delayed the movement to the North Ann until the 21st, when it was commenced. But the enemy again having the shorter line, and being in possession of the main roads, was enabled to reach the North Ann in advance of us and took possession behind it. The 5th corps reached the North Ann on the afternoon of the 23d closely followed by the 6th corps. The 2d and 9th corps got up about the same time the 2d building the railroad bridge and the 9th lying between that and Jericho ford. General Warren effected a crossing the same afternoon and got a position without much opposition. Soon after getting into position he was violently attacked, and repulsed the enemy with great slaughter. On the 24th General Sheridan rejoined the army of the Potomac from the raid on which he started from Spottsylvania, having destroyed the depots at Beaver Dam and Ashland stations, four trains of cars loaded with supplies of various and many miles of railroad track, recaptured about four hundred Union men, on their way to Richmond as prisoners of war, met and defeated the enemy's cavalry at Yellow Tavern, carried the first line of works around Richmond, but finding the second line too strong to be carried by assault, crossed the north bank of the Chickahominy at Meadow Bridge, under heavy fire, and moved by a detour to Haxall's landing, on the James river, where he communicated with General Butler. This raid had the effect of drawing off the whole of the enemy's cavalry force, and making it comparatively easy to guard our trains.

General Butler in pursuance of instructions, on the 4th of May, General Gillmore having joined with the 10th corps. At the same time he sent a force of 1,500 cavalry, by way of West Point, to form a junction with him wherever he might get a foothold and a force of 3,000 cavalry, under General Kautz from Suffolk, to operate against the roads south of Petersburg and Richmond. On the 5th he occupied, without opposition, both City Point and Bermuda Hundred. His movements being a complete surprise. On the 5th he was in position with his main army, and commenced intrenching. On the 7th he made a reconnoissance against the Petersburg and Richmond railroad, destroying a portion of it after some fighting. On the 9th he telegraphed as follows:

England's Ultimatum

All hopes for a peaceful adjustment of our claims on England seem to be at an end The English Secretary of Foreign Affairs curtly informs Minister Adams that it is useless to prolong the controversy, and that diplomatic correspondence on this subject will not be continued All that is left for the United States is, therefore to pocket the loss which our citizens have suffered by English rebel cruisers and with it this very unenvious rebuff, or go to war If our Government did not intend to insist upon, and even to enforce, if necessary, the settlement of these claims then the claims should not have been preferred It must be owned that, as the matter now stands this country is not left in a very enviable position Our cause has been most ably conducted by Minister Adams, and this Government lost nothing so long as the English Cabinet was disposed to argue the points in dispute, but the refusal of the British Government to proceed further with the case is a sharp snub for the United States, and leaves us to elect what shall be done next We have Britain's ultimatum; what will be the action of our Government upon it?

WANTED, A NEW INDIAN POLICY —In view of the unsatisfactoriness of recent military operations against the Indians in various parts of the country, some of the Eastern journals are pressing upon the attention of Congress some suggestions relative to the adoption of a conciliatory policy towards them It is sometimes the case that we find persons who do actually suppose that the natural wildness of the Indian can be tamed, that his innate tendency can be curbed; that the ferocity which distinguishes his race can be mitigated, and that he can be civilized and humanized, and elevated to the dignity of a man. This is a favorite theme for the theorists, and the only thing that militates against it is the absolute impossibility of ever putting it into practice. The Chicago Tribune is absurd enough to suppose that the Indians can be converted from enemies to friends by right treatment. Suppose their friendship were secured, how long would it continue? Only until some little provocation, real or imaginary, could arouse their treacherous and savage natures to deeds of revenge. It is not a milder, but a more vigorous and severe policy that we ought to pursue towards all hostile Indians Those who are disposed to treat with us should always be dealt with in a spirit of justice and kindness; but for the hostility of all others there is only a single remedy, and that is the harsh one of extermination

It is complained at Washington that the Indian campaigns of last year, though costing the Government many millions, accomplished no results General Sully's expedition evaporated in nothing but the addition of $13,000,000 to the national debt. This is not so surprising when we remember that he attempted to carry on a campaign according to the rules of high military art; that his troops marshal in a body as though they were marching against a civilized enemy, and that they were accompanied by a slow, lumbering wagon train, after the manner of the great army of the Potomac. That force of ten thousand never be reached, and hence the expedition was nothing more nor less than an expensive failure.

It is time, as the Eastern journals declare, that we should have a new Indian policy. But it is not our present policy towards them that should be reformed. The great need is to change our manner of making war upon the hostile tribes. Experience has demonstrated that it is of little use to pursue them in regular warfare. Their celerity always enables them to elude a large force, and the ease with which they can procure subsistence anywhere in summer, renders them quite independent of all care on that score, and leaves them free to go wherever they please They will never be subjugated merely by the large military expeditions which are annually sent against them Troops stationed upon the frontiers may give protection to the settlements, but they who will finally subdue the Indians are the people who are pushing into their country and who will soon take permanent possession of it Their method of dealing with hostile Indians is the one which will secure peace. It is to be hoped that the costly experience of the past year will discourage any further attempts to conquer the Indians in regular warfare. The policy that is wanted is not to attempt to obtain peace by coaxing the Indians to be quiet, but to abandon the foolish and expensive system of warfare that has been practiced, and leave the Indians to be managed by those who know best how to do it. We would not disparage the efforts of the military; for we believe that the troops in this State have fully done their duty. That they have been of service to the country is very evident That they have been able to accomplish what they have performed, is attributable to their having discarded the precise but unpractical rules which were absurd by General Sully in his famous and yet futile campaign.

ABANDONS THE FAITH.—In his inaugural address Governor Orr of South Carolina, said "Interest and humanity alike require us to treat the negro kindly and to elevate him morally and intellectually. Suddenly relieved from the restraints of the servile condition in which he was born and reared, his ignorance can excite no surprise. We cannot expect that he will at once subdue vice and crime." A very sensible observation, but if it be true and no one doubts that it is—what becomes of the cherished doctrine of the slave-breeding chivalry, that this 'servile condition" was a "Christianizing and elevating institution!" Governor Orr, himself, was one of the defenders of that faith He now abandons it, He takes early occasion to tell us, in substance that the doctrine once held by himself and his fellow workers in this "evangelical" schemo was shallow and falsehood. He tells us plainly that slavery is the parent of ignorance and vice and crime Was he less clearly convinced of this five years ago, than he is now? Not at all His present utterances show that his past life has been destitute of integrity, and that he and his political associates have devoted all their energies to the support of a system which they, as well as others, know was the sum of all villanies

GENERAL GRANT'S REPORT —We begin to day the publication of General Grant's report of military operations from the time he took the chief command of the army to the close of the rebellion The report will be found to be a document of surpassing interest It is admirably written and gives in a condensed form a history of some of the most important events that the world has ever witnessed

In speaking of President Johnson's message the New York Tribune says:

On a single point we non-concur with the President. His assertion that, if he had assumed to extend the right of suffrage to blacks in the States lately in revolt he must have done the same with all the States, is clearly mistaken, as Mr Johnson must see, if he will vary the form without varying the essence of his proposition, so that it shall read —"If I had assumed to appoint provisional governors for the States lately in revolt, I must have appointed such governors for all the States

The Unterrified

The Copperheads of this State with the presumption that also-ran'd everywhere characterizes them are already rejoicing greatly in anticipation of their victory(?) in the coming election In other States the "Democracy congratulate themselves when they come within twenty or forty thousand votes of electing their candidates Perhaps the Oregon Copperheads think it is worth while to rejoice over the fact that the majority against them in this State came that near to exceed a few thousand Inasmuch as their expectations are so great (though their defeat is certain) we should like to see them name some of their best men for office Though it may be thought ridiculous to suppose that one of their leaders in this State has better qualifications than another, or that there could be any good reason for choosing among the same old batch of seedy politicians for candidates still it there are among them those who possess any greater fitness than others for drinking a canvass we should like to see them called out Then when we shall have beaten them—as beat them we surely will—our victory will put an effectual quietus upon all their protensions and obstacle all further efforts on their part. Judging from the past history of this Copperhead party we know that it is not much that we are entitled to expect in the candidates it will again offer for political sacrifice The Democracy of Oregon still clinging to slavery with an affection that is intensified by the death of its object the resolutions of '98 are the be all and the end all of their party platform Hence we can not consistently with reason expect their candidates to come before the people discussing matters now in issue Were they some what less confident of success, they might change their tactics But as it is we shall have to beat them again upon the same ground as before In making these remarks, we do not mean to intimate that the "Democracy are unchangeable, for we are well aware that they would take any side of any question, if thereby they could get office and power In this State, at the present time, they think that their safest plan is to adhere to the political ideas on which the late 'Southern Confederacy" was founded There may be good reason for this, if, as they claim, their party has lately been largely reinforced by the true Democracy' who showed their devotion to "constitutional principles' by fighting in the rebel army We take it for granted that the 'Democracy" of this State will stand on broad secession principles in the coming campaign However, it makes no sort of difference to us what they conclude to do The only regret of the Unionists is that they have to be brought into a contest with a party which is so completely devoid of all patriotic principle, and which is so utterly despicable in all its characteristics

The "Democracy" of Oregon have pursued a course which they cannot continue without ruin and which they cannot amend without losing the support of the rebels on whose votes they rely Whichever way they turn, they are on an equal dilemma The noise they are already beginning to make, in shouting for victory, reminds us of their obstreperousness in the last Presidential canvass But notwithstanding all their loud boastings and confident predictions, they failed to carry the State In like manner, they will fail again

TAXATION —It is not unlikely that Congress during the present session will make some change in our tax system and, perhaps provide for a material reduction of taxes A bill for redeeming taxes has already been elaborated by Senator Sherman of Ohio We find in Harper's Weekly the following remarks on the defects of the present system:

It will probably be found, on inquiry, that our system fails in two essential particulars first, that its operation is too costly, and, secondly that it opens the door to too many frauds Both of these defects arise from the unwise attempt of Congress to tax every article, that is eaten, or drunk, or worn, or used for necessity or pleasure, or manufactured, or consumed, or enjoyed Under the present law, almost every object that can be named pays not only one but many taxes Take a book, for instance The author pays a tax on the product of his copyright, the publisher pays a license, pays a tax on his sales, and again an income tax on the profit on those sales, the paper used has paid a manufacturer's tax, and a tax on its sale, the ink pays the same, the leather used in the binding has also paid two taxes, the binder pays the income tax and so also the printer, the retailer who sells the book pays for his license, a tax on his sales, and an income tax so that by the time the book reaches the reader it has actually paid fifteen separate taxes to the Government Other articles—a coat, a pair of boots, a carriage, a dwelling house—pay in about the same proportion The worst of all this multiplied and varied taxation is that the Government does not get anything like the whole amount which the public pays, and that while honest men pay their taxes, it is impossible to prevent rogues evading theirs To collect so infinite a number of small taxes requires an army of paid officials To collect them so thoroughly as to prevent fraud would require every second man to be a detective Of the extent to which the revenue is defrauded an idea may be formed from the fact that for many months whisky has been selling for less than the tax alone Of the cost of collecting the revenue no accurate estimate can yet be formed, we must wait for the returns from the Bureau of Internal Revenue But with the present system it must be very much greater than the cost of collecting the revenue of other leading nations

It has been found in Great Britain which has had half a century's experience of heavy taxation that the true secret is to tax few articles and to concentrate the watchfulness of the excise men on them Great Britain now derives as large a revenue from seven articles as she used to draw from two hundred Frauds are of rarer occurrence than they used to be and the cost of collecting the revenue is much reduced Applying the same system to this country if we taxed nothing but cotton tobacco whisky, beer, land, incomes, and legacies, it is likely that in an average of years the income from this source would, with the product of a stamp tax be as large as it would be from the present diversified system, while it is clear that frauds would be less frequent and the cost of collection much reduced It would be quite possible to collect $250,000,000 a year from cotton, whisky beer tobacco, incomes and stamps, a land tax and custom duties might pay $150 000 000 more without difficulty With proper machinery such taxes might be collected for one half the present cost of collecting the revenue, and frauds might be rendered almost impossible

JEFF DAVIS THE DEVOUT —Jeff Davis the intended murderer of liberty and the actual murderer of thousands of our fellow men, has really risen above the cares of earth and is now in a highly devotional frame of mind As he has a Bible in his retirement, he has no doubt been brought to repentance by reading the invocation of the Psalmist Deliver me from blood guiltiness The Herald's correspondent thus speaks of Jeff's religious experiences

The President's message for the calm and sober teachings of the waning year and all falling leaves and wilder wailings of the wind the ugly barn burnings inciting subdued reflection or pride until resolve to be Old Time by this form kicks the matter while Time allows himself to be thus dealt with or some reason of more urgent nature is now as I am authoritatively informed causing Jeff Davis to turn his attention more especially than at any time heretofore to the concerns of his soul His old clergyman of St Paul's church in Richmond—he church which he attended during the war, and from which he made that marvellously rapid exit on the last Sunday of his attendance there—has been allowed to spend a day with him No criminal who is to be led to the gallows can receive more solicitous attention or probably wiser religious counselling The sacrament was administered to him and everything done that could be, by his old religious teacher and adviser the pious scriptural reading and prayer, to give him peace of mind and that chosen fulness and resignation following the right kind of teaching and faith During his imprisonment Mr Davis' only religious attendant and adviser has been the Post Chaplain Rev Mr. Chilvus, a most amiable and excellent man and worthy and devout clergyman, It was natural he should like to be attended by his old pastor, and no one will be inclined, I am sure, to blame him for asking the privilege of his attendance upon him or find fault with the request being complied with

Resolutions relative to several matters pertaining to the Fire Department, endorsed by the Chief Engineer were read and referred to the committee on fire and water with instructions to act if they deemed necessary

Petitions for Pigeon streets and public property, to whom was referred the petition of E. J Ladd and Walter McKay for leave to lay a railroad track on Front street railways stated that they contemplated on the 10th, by telegraph, and received &c. by the steamer, dated January 12th The substance of this letter was, that he had not the right to the privilege or power to lay the pavement by the [illegible] but that he could try it at the right for lowas, Lot or Block. That he had to pay $ 1 of [illegible] for the sum of $3,150; that he would dispose of the right for the balance to the City of Portland, for the sum of $3,350. The work would include furnaces, heaters, &c, now here

The report was accepted and placed on file

The vote was taken on an amendment which was carried by the vote of $100 upon all keepers of saloons, with a regard to the system of selling beer by the glass, and that beer selling beer by the glass drank upon the premises, or retailing all of liquors by the glass. The motion was generally, [illegible] The [illegible] was adopted by Nays 3.

Also, on a resolution to change the meeting of the Council from Friday to Tuesday evenings of each week, but as two petitions were presented, and [illegible] that there should be a full board when [illegible] were entertained, the resolution was laid [illegible] We trust there will be a full board at the next meeting.

[illegible]

A number of persons who had paid [illegible] and paid their [illegible] through [illegible] that they should leave Astoria on or about the 2d of January, with no specified [illegible] ago, on Thursday, by the Pacific, a [illegible] and controlled by the same monopolists [illegible] secured the steamer Active which brought [illegible] Victoria, but were not allowed to proceed on account [illegible] and her being set on shore with their baggage [illegible] miles below the city, were allowed to shift for [illegible] and they returned here as best they could [illegible] not a breath ridden subject, we should again [illegible] how well the people of Oregon submit to [illegible] and compliance of these black mailers? [illegible] are allowed to monopolize [illegible] of the State, so long we [illegible] about the stability of our mail [illegible] papers liable to abandon traveling the Columbia [illegible] to or from Portland. The miner of [illegible] will hardly be coaxed this way, and he will [illegible] of those connecting [illegible] British Columbia [illegible] know they would prefer to take [illegible] Victoria by sailing [illegible], than be treated as [illegible] in the outports lately containing here. [illegible] have their effect, and if our people will but [illegible] to their best interests, they will at least [illegible]

[illegible] Works. The work we [illegible] that [illegible] vail had been changed into [illegible] Mill company, capital stock $100,000, each [illegible] be $100. Collis, Vice P., [illegible], Homer Stephens Secretary and S. A. Morgan Treasurer. The Company has been established for over three years, [illegible] has been doing a steady [illegible] It is now [illegible] and is developing the country, and with [illegible] and facilities, in the hands of direct [illegible] to be [illegible] men, the establishment [illegible] permanent competition. Mr. Waterfield, the [illegible] has established a reputation both here [illegible] A. F. Hazard and Hazard & Hall, [illegible] or either of the [illegible] their interest by calling at this establishment [illegible] ing a look out of the State. Mr Myers [illegible] town, owns the patent right for Luther's [illegible] tankless water wheel, unquestionably [illegible] in all. Hereafter the wheel will be manufactured at the Oregon Iron Works.

[illegible] Knox.—Felix and John Collins have been [illegible] to settle the title to a certain real [illegible] It [illegible] they were former partners, but [illegible] the right, title and interest of Felix in [illegible] to benefit, etc., not long since. Felix [illegible] John attended to other business in the city, [illegible] John concluded to take charge of the place [illegible] with that view hastily set about to clear the [illegible] the hairs, etc., and the day being bitter winter [illegible] Felix was slow to leave forth [illegible] outside the street. When [illegible] John took the best [illegible] order to get him out. At this Felix [illegible] operators were adepts, and before many [illegible] John was upon the street, and Felix retained [illegible] John then swears out a complaint, asserting [illegible] Felix had and assaulted him. The case [illegible] the jury, before Justice Hoffman, and they rendered a verdict of guilty, when Felix was fined $5 and [illegible] with costs. Felix now begins a similar action [illegible] which will be heard this morning.

[illegible] WASH.—Mr. Wilson Waddingham leaves by the [illegible] en route for New York, accompanied by [illegible] Mr. Edward James. Mr. R. W. Tracy also [illegible] to San Francisco. Of Mr. Waddingham [illegible] have read [illegible] a man of [illegible] ness, enterprise and perseverance. In Mr [illegible] gets a gentleman of good business capacities, a thorough knowledge of the[illegible] which they both represent. Their return here [illegible] will be warmly welcomed by their numerous friends [illegible] will return by steamer in February.

[illegible] APPEAR.—Cornelius Gillespie, found guilty [illegible] as reported yesterday, was held for trial at [illegible] of the Circuit Court. The private [illegible]

[illegible] Saturday, was one of the passengers who [illegible] on shore by the Pacific a few miles below the [illegible] bay. Deeming it not well to allow the civilities [illegible] to the case to leave the country he was likewise [illegible] to appear as witness in the matter

[illegible] NAVIGATION.—The line was up a short [illegible] yesterday through to San Francisco, and down again [illegible] short time after. No communication could be had with [illegible] to learn the whereabouts of two or three [illegible] down that way. The Reaper should have [illegible] here on Thursday evening, from below, but she had [illegible] at 7 P M yesterday. The Oriflamme was also [illegible] at 7 P M yesterday. The John H. Couch, Saturday. The [illegible] and the Julia made a trip to Washington Territory [illegible] and will try again to-day, leaving her wharf at 10 [illegible]

[illegible] among the passengers leaving by the [illegible] this morning, we notice Mr C Aubrey Angelo, [illegible] correspondent of the Alta, San Francisco [illegible] all the faults of our friend, he has been [illegible] of accomplishing much, in directing the attention [illegible] to the rich auriferous regions of Idaho, and [illegible] on his way to New York where he hopes to be of more service.

[illegible] Bro.—We were surprised yesterday to hear that [illegible] townsman, Hon. Phil Weidman was to [illegible] to-day for Europe by the Sierra Nevada. Mr. M [illegible] yesterday has been admitted to the firm of Wasserman & Co., and it is the intention of Mr W to stop in [illegible] sufficient length of time to make ample purchases [illegible] their trade in this market. He will then proceed [illegible] Europe, and be absent six or seven months. We wish [illegible] a pleasant journey, and safe return

[illegible] OF THE STEAMER NEVADA.—The steamer Sierra Nevada [illegible] to leave to-day at 8 A. M has the following [illegible] $35,000 in treasure 4000 boxes [illegible] 1000 [illegible] and sheep skins, 60 barrels cider, 117 [illegible] wool, 10 cases hams, 150 cases lard, 18 kegs [illegible] dried apples, 44 pigs extra, 35 boxes merchandise [illegible]

[illegible] FOR SALE.—Any one in quest of a fine [illegible] family sleigh can get up in the very best style and [illegible] Workmanship would do well to call around at [illegible] shop of W E Cooper & Co on 2d street [illegible] Bennett & White's livery stable and see one [illegible] they have completed and which is now ready for [illegible]

[illegible] Weather.—Sleighing could be no better in [illegible] than we enjoy at present. The Mt Adamses [illegible] in excellent condition and a trip out to the White [illegible] to take a dish of oysters at the Pullen [illegible] not bad. Try it while the snow lasts, and be [illegible]

[illegible] Wash.—The river is well filled with floating [illegible] and is rapidly rising. The ferry boat, on [illegible] was carried some distance down the stream, [illegible] run on to a floating tree

[illegible] Meeting.—See notice of meeting of Portland [illegible] Stockholders, at the office of Thomas [illegible] this evening

THE RIGHTS OF A DISLOYAL CONGRESSMAN.—Hon. O. Harris, of Maryland, who was censured by the last Congress on account of his disloyalty, is still in trouble in the House. The following resolution recently introduced in Congress by Mr Farnsworth, of Illinois explains his case in as it stands at present

WHEREAS it is alleged that Benjamin G Harris, a Representative in this House from the fifth district of Maryland was in the month of May last, before a very respectable and intelligent court martial, tried and convicted on the charge and specification to wit —Violation of the Fifty sixth article of war with giving aid and comfort to the public enemy, and inciting them to continue war against the United States, and declaring his sympathy with the enemy and in opposition to the Government of the United States in its efforts to suppress the rebellion and whereas it was proved at the trial that the said Harris expressed his regret that the assassination of President Lincoln came too late to be of any use to the rebellion, and at the same time declared that Jefferson Davis was a great and good man all of which acts are inconsistent with the oath taken by him as a member of the House, and whereas the court martial sentenced him, the said Harris, among other things to be forever disqualified from holding all offices of honor trust or profit under the United States which sentence was approved by the President; therefore

Resolved, That the Committee on Elections be instructed to inquire into the facts of the case and report the same to this House together with such action as said committee may recommend and in making such investigation have power to send for persons and papers

The above was adopted without debate by a vote of 137 to 21

THE REBEL DEBT.—Our dispatches some weeks ago announced that Congress had adopted a resolution for an amendment to the Constitution, prohibiting the payment of the rebel debt The resolution was reported by Mr Wilson, of Iowa, and is as follows:

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives, two-thirds of each house concurring therein that the following article be proposed to the Legislatures of the several States as an amendment to the Constitution, which, when ratified by three-fourth of said Legislatures, shall be valid to all intents and purposes as a part of said Constitution

ARTICLE I —No tax, duty or impost shall be laid, nor shall any appropriation of money be made either by the United States or any one there of, for the purpose of paying, either in whole or part, any debt, contract or liability whatever incurred, made or suffered by any one or more of the States, or the people thereof, for the purpose of aiding a rebellion against the Constitution and laws of the United States.

The vote on this measure was Ayes, 140, Nays, 11. We append the names of those patriotic (?) Congressmen who wanted the Government to pay the debt which was incurred by the rebels in the effort to destroy it Brooks, Denison, Eldridge, Grider, Harding, of Kentucky, McCullough, Nicholson, Ritter, Rogers, Shanklin, and Trimble

WILLIAM DAVIS FOR NEGRO SUFFRAGE.—Mr Davis, of Maryland, has written a very positive letter in favor of admitting the freedmen of the South to suffrage. He denounces the policy of reconstruction as "hurtful intermeddling," and finds authority for interference of Congress with suffrage in the South in the constitutional guaranty of "a republican form of government" to each State. He puts the objection to the unequal suffrage of the South in this shape

Congress is asked to guaranty as republican such despotisms as these: In North Carolina 631,000 citizens ostracise 331,000 In Virginia 719,000 citizens ostracise 453,000 citizens. In Alabama 596,000 citizens ostracise 437,000 citizens. In Georgia 591,000 citizens ostracise 465,000 citizens. In Louisiana 357,000 citizens ostracise 150,000 citizens. In Mississippi 353,000 citizens ostracise 436,000 citizens. In South Carolina 291,000 citizens ostracise 411,000 citizens.

HAS BENNIE STAY AT HOME.—Horace Greeley, says the Boston Journal, has hurried to Washington in the interest of peace, and what he says on the subject in the National Intelligencer is well enough. But he is not needed at the capital, if he were, he would probably be sent for under the [illegible] exercised prerogative of the two Houses to "send for persons and papers." But the trouble is, he takes with him the crushing burden of his old reputation as a peacemaker When the rebellion was first proposed, he advised that for the sake of peace the disaffected States should be allowed to depart quietly, which had a most pernicious effect at the South. The ridiculous and yet truthful developments of his Niagara Falls peace mission are too fresh in the public mind to require more than the briefest allusion. Such, however, is Mr. Greeley as a peace apostle, with such a faculty of blundering as to time and methods, even when commendable in spirit, that his presence and recommendations are always liable to do more harm than good. But Mr. Greeley's former peace blunders have happily reduced his present chances of misleading others to a degree that can occasion but little anxiety

HOW THROAT DISEASES AND AFFECTIONS OF THE CHEST, "Brown's Bronchial Troches," or Cough Lozenges, are of great value In Coughs, Irritation of the Throat caused by cold, or unusual exertion of the vocal organs, in speaking in public, or singing they produce the most beneficial results. "The Troches" have proved their efficacy

ELECTION RETURNS.—After a thorough canvass of the vote of public opinion, it must be gratifying to all those those laboring under pulmonary affections of whatever character, to know that a unanimous verdict has been given in favor of the unequaled efficacy of Sewell's Pulmonary Syrup over all other remedies, for coughs, colds, consumption, bronchitis, asthma, croup, whooping cough, etc, etc

Stockholders' Meeting.—A Meeting of the Stockholders of the POTOSI OF IDAHO G. & S. M CO. will be held at Thomas Frazar's Office in this city on Saturday, January 20, 1866, at 7 P M A full attendance is requested.

WEEKLY REVIEW

PORTLAND, January 19th, 1866

The detention of the Sierra Nevada in the Columbia river, and the period that elapsed previous to the departure of the Pacific from San Francisco, on her last trip left us without a steamer for some length of time, and the rough weather interfering with the sailing vessels, combined to render matters particularly dull, affording no means of export for trade on hand, at out the latter article for which there was a demand; but during the past week we have had a rush, and the shipments of apples especially, will no doubt result in flooding the San Francisco market unless holders can afford to wait and be firm. The Fredie to last 60 boxes of apples besides several casks of dried fruit, and small lots of bacon We have no idea how bacon can be shipped to San Francisco from here at this time without a hope of profit but certain lots were purchased for that purpose.

The speculation in coffee has subsided and prices are tending downward, Rio is from 31c reduced to 29c Rio 3/4 lower.

In consequence of the close of navigation we have had dull trade to report for the period under review, and must admit the Wholesale and Jobbing prices without much change

Daily Produce Market.

PORTLAND, January 19th, 1866.

The weather is very severe and no doubt is the principle cause of the dullness which pervades the market. We have nothing new or interesting to say in the line of domestic produce transactions.

The navigation of the Willamette has not been obstructed by ice, and the stream is now rapidly rising, which may be the means of keeping the Columbia open more surely below the mouth of the Willamette.

On Monday next the Willamette Steam Navigation Company will be in active operation from this city to the highest point of navigation above the falls. They have already a large amount of freight to deliver to this city, from Oregon City. The boats of the P. T. Company have been running regular trips and have kept up daily communication for a number of days. We need no better proof of the profitableness of this route than the success of the latter company on this side of the falls. They will be well sustained.

We are glad to be able this week to say something decisive with regards to fat cattle, and swine, but are not able to give quotations. Hogs, dressed, 10 cents on foot is worth 7 cents. Hogs, dressed, 10 cents on foot 7 cents.

There is some inquiry for beeves and cows, at 10 cents Jobbing at 10@12 cents. Lard is drooping.

Oregon dried apples are 15 cents, and at 7@8 cents, and we note some sales, while for export at, 10 cts, rates of 10 cents ₱ lb.

Apples are sparingly offered, and the variety of prices is 1 cent ₱ lb.

Hay and feed grain is more active on account of the weather and other, hay has been of dull sale

We have few alterations to make in prices in the above market. Fresh eggs are decidedly scarce, and still rule high, but "there is a disposition to some lower. Butter is the same as last week a good quality always finds a ready sale at paying figures.

In the article of flour, we have to note the introduction of a home brand, from the new mill of Mr G W Vaughan, which is in demand among housekeepers at prices quoted above.

Poultry and game is scarce Vegetables are also becoming scarce, and we have to note a considerable advance in cabbage and onions Honey remains unchanged, but 30 cents is asked for extra quality 12 pound boxes

Woolen and Cotton Goods.

PORTLAND, January 19th, 1866

The woolen goods market, which has been so barren of excitement for so long a time, is now better supplied than at any former period since the commencement of fall and winter trade We are informed by Messrs A B Elfelt & Co., agents for the Willamette Manufacturing Company, that in future the trade may rely upon full stocks to select from. Those goods when compared with Eastern manufactures, as to quality and price, are decidedly favorable Indeed we are informed that a sample car forwarded to the East, on which comparison was made and price reduced to gold, shows that there would be a profit in exporting to the East, but the demands for the manufacture here will not admit of the export.

The works at Oregon City have as yet no goods to speak of on the market From the fine order of things at this establishment, we expect to see, another year much to the credit of our woolen goods, and much for the State to be proud of

The cotton goods market is void of interest No changes are recommended in prices

THE STANDARD AMERICAN BILLIARD TABLES!

AND COMBINATION CUSHIONS

MESSRS. PHELAN & COLLENDER

WOULD RESPECTFULLY CALL THE ATTENtion of persons wanting Billiard Tables to the great superiority of the above tables, manufactured exclusively at their establishment

At the Billiard Congress of 1863, composed of all the first class players of America, it was unanimously resolved that tables of our manufacture should be used at all matches for the Championship, as the best and only reliable tables.

These Billiard Tables have received the unqualified approval of the best players and most competent judges, who have universally pronounced them unequaled for general excellence and durability!

Seven distinct patents for improvements in Billiard Tables have been granted to us by the United States Patent Office, and we have lately obtained a Patent from the French Government, for our improvement in Billiard Cushions

We employ in the construction of our tables a variety of machines specially made for the purpose by means of which we are enabled to insure a scientific and mechanical accuracy hitherto unknown in Billiard manufacture, having a long experience and thorough knowledge of all the appliances of Billiards, and constantly on hand a large stock of the best and most thoroughly seasoned materials, we are prepared to furnish everything required in the Billiard line with unprecedented dispatch

Extract from Billiard Player, M. Berger, has published the following opinion:

"NEW YORK, 2d August, 1863

On the eve of leaving the United States, I am happy to declare to all amateurs of Billiards that, after a tour of eleven months through the principal cities, I have been able to judge the make of every manufacturer of the superiority of the Billiard Tables manufactured by Phelan & Collender The system of manufacturing is as superior that I am happy to introduce their system of cushion into France They have united to their manufacture of American Billiard Tables that of the French Tables, of remarkable excellence and beauty For these reasons, I am happy to make this declaration

"BERGER, CLAUDIUS,
Prof. of Billiards, Paris"

Parties ordering from us will find our prices as low as good work can possibly be made for. We sell first-class articles at a fair price, and will not make an inferior article on any price

Orders by mail carefully and promptly executed Illustrated Catalogues and Price Lists sent by mail. The "Billiard Cue," a Journal published in the interest of Billiards, and containing details of all novelties, a complete record of Billiard news, and everything of interest to admirers of Billiards, sent free on application

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver into proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS TIME, if not of too long standing IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION! IT IS WARRANTED TO produce convalescence (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time.
